

The Valuable 500

In 2019 Caroline Casey asked chief executives from the world's biggest companies to join together and agree to include disabled people.

This was the start of The Valuable 500.

On 18 May 2021, the Valuable 500 team reached their goal of getting 500 chief executives and their companies involved in including disabled people.

These 500 people manage over 20 million people in their companies worldwide.

The companies include Apple, BP, The Coca-Cola Company, EY, Microsoft, Nestle, P&G, Prada, Shell, Sony, Twitter, Unilever, Virgin Media, Verizon, and many more.

The companies are now working to include disabled people more in their work.
